CHRONOSCOPE WITH POLARIZED MAGNET, AFTER SCHULZE
(E. Zimmermann, Leipzig – Berlin)

Precision clock mechanism with time resolution up to 1 millisecond that can be connected to a number of different instruments. The apparatus is an improved version of Hipp's chronoscope. Instead of an electromagnet, Schulze introduced a polarized magnet which makes chronoscope suitable for all time intervals, even at varied DC voltage. The chronoscope has two dials: the upper dial indicates milliseconds, and the lower indicates tenths of a second.
